Captured in the woods, an injured girl is restrained in a basement with many people present. Upon revealing she is demonically possessed, her father, Harold, sets her on fire and shoots her dead. Subsequently, a group of friends, Mia, Mia's brother David, Eric, Olivia and David's girlfriend, Natalie, arrange a getaway to an old, remote cabin in the woods, helping Mia to get clean after her severe drug addiction led to her clinical death. At the cabin, a foul stench leads them to discover a cellar, hosting animal corpses, a double-barreled shotgun and a book titled Naturom Demonto, a Sumerian variation of the Book of the Dead. Ignoring warnings on the book's pages, Eric reads a passage aloud, summoning a demon which enters Mia's body. Terrified, Mia pleads to leave, but the group refuses, after agreeing with Mia to stay put and help her through her addiction. Possessed by the demon, Mia attempts to warn David, but the group dismisses her claims as an excuse to leave. After killing David's dog, Mia burns her face in the boiling hot shower, as she fulfills a prophecy from the book. David rushes to get her to a hospital, but a flood blocks the roads.

- It's ultimately everything a modern horror movie should be
 - it offers enough good-time gore, goofiness, scares and screams to leave an audience feeling a certain elated exhaustion.
